Assessing Strengths

What to look for in a Strengths-Based Assessment

When we assess a child's and family's strengths we look at four specific areas; their attitudes and values, skills and abilities, qualities and preferences.

Attitudes and Values

These are beliefs and expectations the child and family hold. These may be conscious or unconscious affirmations that a family teaches their children.

- Respect for privacy
- Strong sense of ritual and traditions
- Concern for family unity and loyalty
- Shared Responsibility

Skills and Abilities

Skills and abilities are either hard competencies or soft skills related to many areas of life such as work, school or sports.

- Family Communication style
- Playing together
- Ability to plan ahead
- Good math skills
- Good carpentry skills

Qualities

Qualities are descriptive statements that can be made about the family's characteristics and interaction patterns.

- Positive outlook on the future
- Patient with each other
- Strong bond between family members
- Enjoys being the center of attention

Preferences

The child's and family's likes and dislikes.

- Maximizes the voice and choice of the family
- Can help support the match between family strengths and needs
- Indicates the family's choice of service delivery and what choice of services they can handle

Dad is a friendly outgoing person; he enjoys learning about other cultures. He is very committed to his wife Mom and values family. He recognizes the value in using Grandmother and Uncle to assist in raising his children in the way of his culture and takes time with his children to impart his values to them. He is a strong man who is willing to go against the grain of the larger culture. He is open to new natural support #1s and values diversity (Natural support #1). Dad has been very successful in managing money. He has a talent for the stock market. He has a good sense of humor and enjoys laughter. Dad has a skill for languages and can speak French fluently. He is open-minded and has an easy way with people.

Mom is warm and open with others. She is fiercely protective of her children, family, and devoted to her husband Dad. She also utilizes the benefit of having more than one generation living in the family home. She is accepting of others who may differ from her (cousin) and is open to learning from them. She is actively involved in the community. Mom is a skilled gardener enjoys horticulture and has an extensive collection of poisonous plants. Mom is skilled in communicating with others and has the ability to create a safe and stable environment for the children. Mom runs the house smoothly organizing chores and activities she insures everyone is well cared for. Mom enjoys smoking (literally) when she needs to relax and has developed this as a coping skill when stressful situations arise. Mom is very skilled in finding resources in the community.

Daughter is the oldest child living in the home. She receives home schooling from her Grandmother and Uncle. She is a bright child who is very friendly and shows a special interest in history especially Marie Antoinette. Her favorite toy is her Marie Antoinette doll. She also enjoys science and often develops various scientific experiments and encourages her brother "Son" to help her test out various theories and inventions; most recently an electric chair. Daughter also likes insect's, and has pet spiders that she takes good care of, showing an ability to be responsible for the care of others.
Son is the youngest child living in the home and is Daughter's brother. He is a happy young man who is quick to forgive others (including his sister) when he feels they have mistreated him. Son enjoys assisting his sister in scientific experiments and is very good at chemistry and mechanical engineering himself, once developing a guillotine that actually worked.

Uncle (Dad's brother) is a very caring uncle to his niece and nephew and assists Dad, Mom and Grandmother in raising them into the family culture. Uncle has an electric personality and can literally light up a room when he enters it. Along with Grandmother, Uncle provides the children with home schooling. He is especially talented in developing science projects that make it fun for the children to learn. Uncle can be relied upon and is calm in a crisis. The children look up to uncle and desire to please him.

Grandmother also lives in the family home. As noted, she assists Uncle in providing the children with home based education. She provides respite to Dad and Mom. Grandmother has extensive knowledge of Chemistry. She knows how to develop potions and can apply hexes and spells of all kinds. She is generous with her knowledge and willing to share with her grandchildren her values and culture.

Natural support #1, who has been a friend of Dad since childhood, also lives in the family home. He contributes his talents such as retrieving the mail, writing letters and giving individual family members support and a pat on the back when needed. He has developed a number of methods for sharing his insights with the family including Morse code and sign language.

Finally, Natural support #2 who is a longtime family friend also lives in the family home. He contributes in many ways, has many skills, and is noted to be a "jack of all trades". He is devoted to the children and often will provide respite to the parents by amusing them. He is excellent at playing the harpsichord and organ. Natural support #2 can be counted on to come whenever he is called and is always willing to do whatever is asked of him. in order to help the family. Natural support #2 is skilled in all types of home maintenance. He can fix all kinds of machinery. Natural support #2 is loyal to a fault and can be relied upon in an emergency.

As a family, they are committed to maintaining their heritage and values. Mom and Dad value education as do Uncle and Grandmother. They work hard to insure that their children are educated in a way that makes sense to them and that prepares them for the life they are likely to lead when they grow up. The family values each other’s talents and skills and enjoys diversity in their home life. They enjoy playing musical instruments together. The presence of extended family and friends is a value that Dad and Mom hold dear and they believe that each member of the household has talents and skills to share and to make things run smoothly. They have a stable living situation as well as transportation.
